2014 RONALD MCDONALD HOUSE HOUSTON

A PLACE TO CALL HOME
Dear Friends,

I want to personally thank you all for a tremendously successful year at Ronald McDonald House Houston. It is difficult for many of us to imagine what families experience when their child is diagnosed with a life-threatening illness. However, because of you, RMH Houston can provide support during these incredibly challenging times.

At our home away from home, families are able to spend quality time with their loved ones in a caring and nurturing environment. They find strength in encountering other families with whom they can bond and share similar experiences. The halls of the Holcombe House are filled with laughter as children enjoy new friendships, while our in-hospital homes provide a quiet and calming respite for families whose children are in critical condition.

In 2014, we reached a number of milestones at RMH Houston. Our freestanding 50-bedroom House on Holcombe Boulevard, 20-bedroom House inside Texas Children’s Hospital, 14-bedroom House inside Children’s Memorial Hermann Hospital and two bedroom Family Room at MD Anderson Children’s Cancer Hospital provided over 28,000 overnight stays to more than 4,700 different families.

We could not have supported these families without the help of our over 650 wonderful RMH Houston volunteers who gave more than 26,000 hours of their time worth approximately $600,000 to us in 2014. Most importantly, our loving volunteers provided warmth and compassion to the thousands of families who call our House home each year.

As we move forward in 2015, we are excited for the growth of the RMH Houston organization and cannot wait to announce plans to serve more families than ever in our history going forward. On behalf of all the families at RMH Houston, we thank you for your continued support of our mission.

Sincerely,

W. Greg Looser

PRESIDENT, RONALD MCDONALD HOUSE HOUSTON
“It was the love, smiles and support from the other Ronald McDonald House Houston families plus the crafts projects, garden and field trips that kept us focused and smiling.”

Families come from all over the world to seek treatment in the Texas Medical Center institutions. We are proud to offer a safe and loving environment to all families of children facing a life threatening condition.
For many people, Ronald McDonald House Houston brings the comfort of home to critically ill children and their families but it also brings a bond among moms, dads and kids that cannot be replaced. Children meet and play with other children who are going through similar illnesses and parents have other parents who can relate to some of the scariest situations imaginable.

Lori and her daughter Arianna lit up the Holcombe House when they arrived during the 2014 summer from Missouri. Arianna, like most other 8 year old girls, loves American Girl dolls, arts & crafts and playing dress up.

“Having a place to be and having fun things to do is helpful, but the most amazing thing is having a friend,” Lori said. “Arianna met Maddie and they immediately bonded. Maddie is almost the same age as Arianna and the two girls have been going through very similar cancer treatments for years.”

The girls first met the week Arianna arrived and have been inseparable ever since. They run in and out of each other’s rooms, share clothes and find new places in the House to play with their dolls. They even turned the downstairs playroom and tree house into a fort for their matching American Girl dolls. Arianna has two brothers who are living back at home and said that being able to have a friend like Maddie at the House makes her feel a little better about being away from her brothers.

Of course Lori is excited that Arianna and Maddie have become great friends, and she is also thrilled that she found a friend in Maddie’s mom, Robyn.

“To have someone to talk to and compare treatment notes with is amazing. It makes the time go by so much quicker when you have someone you can relate to or just have coffee with, and the House gives us that special place to bond,” said Lori.

Even when Maddie and her mom returned home for a short break, Arianna and Lori kept in touch with them. Arianna was sending Maddie pictures of the dancing and happenings during Southwest Airlines night at RMH Houston, and Maddie was sending Arianna pictures from her day at the beach, both wishing they could be back together.

“She doesn’t have a lot of control in her life; she has to go where the doctors tell her to go, she has to do what they tell her to do and eat what they tell her to eat,” said Lori. “Giving Arianna a sense of freedom where it’s safe and secure is something I’m so happy for her to experience.”

Lori said they were offered an apartment in Houston but turned it down because they wanted the compassion and social aspect of the Ronald McDonald House. Ronald McDonald House Houston truly turns friends into families. Please help support these special friendships by clicking here to make a donation today. Every penny counts to help families like Lori and Arianna feel comfort during a frightening time!

“Having a place to be and having fun things to do is helpful, but the most amazing thing is having a friend.”
Right in the middle of the Texas Children’s Hospital Abercrombie building is a 20 bedroom Ronald McDonald House. Many don’t know about the House unless they’ve needed to use it while their child is in the Pediatric or Neonatal Intensive Care Unit.

For Angela, she first learned of the Ronald McDonald House inside Texas Children’s Hospital when her son Nicholas was only 11 days old. Nicholas was Angela’s first child so she didn’t know what was happening when he suddenly refused to eat and became lethargic. It appeared he was born healthy just ten days earlier. After a rising temperature and calls into her son’s pediatrician, Angela hurried to the Texas Children’s Hospital Emergency Room. Nicholas was diagnosed with meningitis at 11 days old.

Angela and Nicholas

“Ronald McDonald House Houston really helped me be the mother that I needed to be at that time.”
“I remember walking the hall from the emergency room to the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit at Texas Children’s Hospital and being in a complete daze,” said Angela. “How could Nicholas have been fine twelve hours ago and now I’m holding my baby while he’s hooked up to oxygen?”

Angela never expected her newborn to be in the hospital let alone in Neonatal Intensive Care. She couldn’t fathom leaving Nicholas’ bedside, especially since she was still nursing. She learned of the Ronald McDonald House Houston at Texas Children’s Hospital from one of Nicholas’ nurses.

“While Nicholas was in the hospital, my family reminded me that I had to take care of myself so I could keep nursing Nicholas. The doctors at Texas Children’s Hospital were looking after Nicholas and the Ronald McDonald House Houston really helped me be the mother that I needed to be at that time,” said Angela.

She remembers the overwhelming sense of comfort she felt the first time she walked through the doors at RMH Houston inside Texas Children’s Hospital. She can still recall the smell of fresh chocolate chip cookies baking in the kitchen each day.

Nicholas remained in the hospital for nearly a month, and Angela frequently stayed at the House inside Texas Children’s Hospital so that she could be steps away from her newborn. While there, she prayed that her son would be healed and promised she would give back to the organizations that helped her during this time.

Today, Angela is thrilled to report that Nicholas is completely healthy and suffered no side effects from the meningitis. And of course she has kept up with her promise by giving back to RMH Houston.

“Every year on Christmas Eve, my mom and I take a Christmas Eve dinner and donation items to the Ronald McDonald House at Texas Children’s Hospital for the families who are spending the holidays there,” said Angela. “I have to say that this is the highlight of my Christmas every year, and I’m so thankful for anyone and everyone who makes the Ronald McDonald Houses possible.”

Having a child who is seriously ill is often described as absolutely terrifying for parents. While their child is receiving treatment, RMH Houston is here to take care of the parents. The Ronald McDonald House in-hospital programs at Texas Children’s Hospital, Children’s Memorial Hermann Hospital and MD Anderson Children’s Cancer Hospital are steps down the hall from their child’s bedside. The in-hospital Houses are a quiet escape from the beeping machines and a place where parents can regroup for the next day, make difficult decisions in the privacy of their bedroom or even have a much-needed cry so that they can be the best possible parent for their child. Mogie has been living at Ronald McDonald House Houston for four years. As our Key Comfort Ambassador, his job is to help the children relax and feel at home even when they are scared and don’t feel well. Everyone enjoys a big hug, wagging tail and a loving lick as needed.
Hi Friends!

Mogie here, the Key Comfort Ambassador at Ronald McDonald House Houston. To say 2014 was AMAZING for me and our House is an understatement.

In 2014, Mogie: The Heart of the House was officially released! It made a big splash and RMH Houston made over $15,000 from sales in just the first three months the book was on shelves. I’ve noticed that since the book has come out, I’ve been recognized while out on field trips. Kids AND parents get so excited to see me when I visit their school or gathering and exclaim, “That’s Mogie! He works at Ronald McDonald House Houston!”

We tested out my appearance schedule in 2014, and I visited two different schools to raise awareness for RMH Houston. Kathi Appelt, author of Mogie: The Heart of the House, accompanied me on these visits and read the book to hundreds of elementary students.

I attended a huge party called Boo Ball! Have you heard of it? Boo Ball is a biennial Gala hosted by RMH Houston that raised over $1.4 million in 2014. Marc Rosenthal, the illustrator of Mogie: The Heart of the House, and Kathi Appelt attended the Gala and met so many RMH Houston supporters. They signed books and donated auction items, and truly helped make the event a huge success. I also kicked off the 5K race at Trafigura Run for the House and was there to witness $377,873 being raised for my House!

The parties and visits to the schools were great but at the end of the day my job is to be at the House and provide comfort to all the families living here. In 2014, I made many new friends who played fetch with me and treated me to a belly rub. I took naps on the couch with tired kiddos and leaned up against moms who seemed a little stressed out.

My job truly is the best, and I hope you’ll follow my journey at www.mogiethedog.com.

Hugs & Sloppy Kisses,

Mogie
“Everything was new to her. She was so unsure of everything. We told her about the play room, the outside area and how much fun she would have. But it was Mogie who turned Cayde back into that smiling little girl again.”

— RMH HOUSTON FAMILY
“Mogie himself is a real dog, a frisky labradoodle who lives in the Ronald McDonald House in Houston, Texas, where gravely ill children and their families can stay during medical treatment. Though a portion of the book’s proceeds will go to supporting the charitable enterprise, this terrific story is not some sort of extended advertisement. It is a proper picture book, filled with witty, tender writing and lively, appealing illustrations that will engage the hearts of 4- to 9-year-olds. We meet Gage, who “was once a ball-throwing, race-running, back-flipping boy,” and Antonia, who “was once a toe-dancing, jump-roping, cartwheel-spinning girl,” and we learn the origins of the canine companion who sets out to gladden these and other ailing children. “Give this dog a bone and he’ll chew it,” Ms. Appelt writes. “Give him a stick and he’ll fetch it. Give him a kiddo who is bluer than blue, and Mogie will be truer than true.” Children are likely to find this a touching experience; most parents won’t be able to read it without sobbing.”

— WALL STREET JOURNAL
“Mogie’s one good dog, and readers will be awfully glad they’ve met him.”

– KIRKUS REVIEWS

“This heartwarming story will satisfy animal lovers and anyone who enjoys a happy ending.”

– SCHOOL LIBRARY JOURNAL

“Mogie: The Heart of the House is a warm tribute to a remarkable dog and to the workers at Ronald McDonald Houses, which will receive a share of proceeds from book sales.”

– PUBLISHER’S WEEKLY
